The SiuYeh Night Owl Handbook

Sample document for the Footnote demo. SiuYeh and its restaurants are fictional; nothing here describes a real business.

What SiuYeh is

SiuYeh is a late-night food ordering service in Seattle. The name comes from the Cantonese word for a late-night snack. Orders go to three kitchens: Kowloon Nights, a Hong Kong style cha chaan teng in the U District; Golden Lantern, a dim sum house in the Chinatown-International District; and Elliott Bay Night Market, a waterfront stand that serves Seattle classics such as teriyaki chicken and clam chowder.

Opening hours

Kowloon Nights is open every day from 6 pm to 2 am. Golden Lantern serves dim sum from 5 pm until midnight and is closed on Tuesdays. Elliott Bay Night Market opens from 7 pm to 1 am, Thursday through Sunday only. Last orders are taken 30 minutes before each kitchen closes.

Most ordered dishes

The most ordered dish at Kowloon Nights is the shrimp wonton noodle soup ($14.50), usually with a Hong Kong milk tea ($4.75). At Golden Lantern the top seller is har gow ($7.50 for four). At Elliott Bay Night Market it is the Seattle teriyaki chicken ($13.95).

Ordering and delivery

Delivery zones

SiuYeh delivers to the U District, Capitol Hill, Fremont, Ballard and the Chinatown-International District. Orders from outside these neighborhoods can be picked up at any of the three kitchens.

Fees and minimums

The minimum order for delivery is $15. Delivery costs $3.99, and delivery is free for orders over $40. Pickup orders have no minimum and no fee.

Rainy nights

Seattle rain slows riders down. On heavy-rain nights every delivery estimate is increased by 15 minutes, and the app shows a small umbrella icon next to the estimate.

Cancellations

An order can be cancelled for a full refund until the kitchen starts cooking it, which is usually within five minutes of checkout. After that, cancellations are not possible.

Food notes and rewards

Allergens

Har gow, siu mai and the shrimp wonton noodles contain shellfish and wheat. Mango pudding and Hong Kong milk tea contain dairy. Teriyaki sauce contains soy and wheat. Egg tarts contain egg, dairy and wheat. Customers with severe allergies should call the kitchen before ordering, because all three kitchens handle shellfish, peanuts and sesame.

Refunds

If an item is missing or wrong, customers can request a refund from the Orders page within 24 hours of delivery. Refunds go back to the original payment method within three to five business days.

Night Owl points

Customers earn one Night Owl point for every dollar spent after 10 pm. 100 points can be exchanged for a free box of egg tarts, and 250 points for a free main dish at any kitchen. Points expire after 12 months without an order.

Contact

Questions about an order go to the help chat in the app. Kitchen phone numbers are listed on each restaurant page.